Hurricane Katrina Information Packet
For FTA Grantees

Many thanks for all that you in the transit industry have done to help the hundreds of thousands of people who have been displaced or affected by Hurricane Katrina. We understand the importance of putting the needs of transit customers first. Although FTA cannot waive requirements that have been established in statute, we do have some flexibility with regard to administrative requirements. By the same token, we encourage FTA State grantees to be similarly flexible when dealing with their sub-grantees. It is our intent to make it as easy as possible for transit agencies to help people who have been affected by the storm and its aftermath and continue providing high quality service to existing customers, while continuing to uphold the stewardship responsibilities entrusted to us as public servants.

This document is intended to answer many of the questions received by FTA. In as many cases as possible, the information is designed to be specific enough for you to act upon. If you need further guidance, please call your FTA Regional Office for help.

Section 1: Information Specifically for Transit Agencies in the Affected Area

1. What can I do to help my transit employees who are now out of work?

People who lose their jobs due to a disaster, or those who still have a job but are unable to work and not drawing a paycheck due to a disaster, may apply for Disaster Unemployment Assistance (DUA). DUA provides weekly benefits to individuals who are unemployed and not eligible for regular Unemployment Insurance Compensation. Advise your employees to call 1-800-621-FEMA (TTY: 1-800-462-7585) or the local unemployment office for information. If your employees are members of a labor union, you should also tell them to contact their union representative to determine if any additional assistance is available from the union.

2. Can FTA money be used to pay eligible salaries (i.e., for maintenance costs), if no service is being provided?

If employees are engaged in work to restore service, these salary costs are eligible for FTA reimbursement as a normal capital expense. If no transit service is being provided, employees who are not engaged in activities related to restoration of service may not be paid with FTA funds. These out-of-work employees may, however, be eligible for Disaster Unemployment Insurance (see question 1).

3. My transit agency offices were damaged/destroyed. Can I use FTA capital funds to establish temporary facilities and acquire office equipment?

While the cost of leasing office space and furnishings can be paid for with FTA capital formula funds, these costs may also be eligible for FEMA reimbursement. You should contact your FTA Regional Office if you wish to utilize capital formula funds, but it would also be advisable to contact your State emergency management office and FEMA to seek funding for these expenses (see Section 4 for contact information).

4. If I haven't been able to provide normal service levels or have had to change service routes, what should I do in order to stay in good standing with FTA with respect to funding?

FTA will not take adverse actions against transit agencies who have not been able to provide normal service due to the disaster.

5. Do I need to document the damage to my vehicles and facilities?

Yes. You should document the condition of the vehicles and facilities against your agency's written inventory. Please contact your FTA Regional Office if you need assistance in assessing damage.

6. What do I need to do to get my damaged fleet and facilities replaced? Will FTA or FEMA pay?

FEMA's program is intended to replace damaged and destroyed property. A contact list for FEMA and State emergency offices is attached for your use. You should also contact your insurance company regarding coverage.

7. What if I can no longer carry out the purposes of an open grant? What happens to the money I've already spent?

FTA will not take adverse actions against transit agencies that cannot carry out the purposes of an open grant due to the disaster. There may be an opportunity to change the grant for other eligible purposes. Your Regional Office can work with you to discuss options.

Section 2: Information for Transit Agencies Serving People Who Have Been Relocated/Displaced by the Disaster

Adding New Service or Restoring Service

1. What do I have to do if I want to add new routes in order to assist relocated residents?

Transit agencies are permitted to add new routes for this purpose at their own discretion. Transit providers that receive funds through their State Department of Transportation should coordinate their plans to change service with their State transit office.

2. Can I provide transit service outside my normal service area in order to help affected people access local community services (i.e., medical offices, church, social service agencies, grocery stores, etc.)?

There are no Federal rules that would prohibit you from providing this service. Please contact your local transportation authorities regarding temporary changes in your service area to meet the needs of evacuees.

3. Can I borrow a vehicle from another FTA grantee without obtaining an FTA determination that the vehicle is for “incidental use”?

You do not need to seek FTA approval for vehicle loans. FTA will consider the loan of vehicles for this use to be a permissible “incidental use.”

4. If I borrow a vehicle, whose insurance covers the vehicle?

The transit agencies or other entities involved should work with their insurance companies to determine coverage.

Charter Service Requirements

5. Does all of my service have to be “open door”? For example, can I take a group of shelter residents to a specific location without triggering the charter rule?

Although the charter rule would normally apply, because of the emergency situation for Hurricane Katrina evacuees FTA has waived the requirement for public participation in the determination of whether there are willing and able private providers for this type of service. Nevertheless, transit agencies that desire to provide such services should make a good faith effort to determine whether local private charter operators are able to provide that service. You should document these efforts. In addition, you should notify the American Bus Association (email: abainfo@buses.org) and the United Motor Coach Association (email: info@uma.org) of your proposal to provide the service. Please remember that private charter operators have also been impacted by this disaster and should be given an opportunity to participate in providing service. Like public agencies, private operators providing service to evacuees may also be eligible for FEMA reimbursement.

6. If I don't charge affected people for this service, will I trigger the charter rule process?

The same rules apply (see question 5) whether you charge fares or not.

7. Am I required by Federal law to charge fares?

No, you are not required by Federal law to charge fares.

ADA Paratransit

8. If I provide fixed route service via new routes to serve affected people, do the ADA paratransit requirements apply to those new routes? What if I don't have any additional capacity to provide ADA paratransit on those routes?

Yes, ADA paratransit requirements would apply to the new routes. However, we recognize that the sudden influx of evacuees who need such assistance may place extraordinary demands on a paratransit system, possibly resulting in unavoidable trip denials, long waits, or an inability to provide service within 24 hours. FTA will not suspend, terminate or refuse Federal financial assistance to the transit agency, or take other enforcement actions under these circumstances. Transit operators that receive funds through a State should contact their State transit office to discuss their service plans and resource availability.

9. Will I get reimbursed by FEMA for these extraordinary paratransit expenses?

At this time, FEMA has not made a determination regarding reimbursement. We suggest that you keep records of transportation services provided to evacuees and the cost of those services, and contact your State emergency management office to make them aware of these needs.

10. If someone comes to me seeking paratransit service, but does not have identification or verification of ADA eligibility, should I provide the service?

FTA encourages transit agencies to provide service to any evacuee who requests paratransit service, even if the individual does not have identification or documentation showing that he/she was eligible at home. Transit agencies can comply with Federal requirements by granting visitor status for a reasonable time, which may exceed the 21 days provided for in the regulation. If an evacuee permanently relocates to your community, it would be appropriate to use your local eligibility process to determine long-term eligibility for ADA services.

Funding Eligibility and Reimbursement

11. What operating expenses can I pay for with FTA capital funds? What specifically am I not allowed to pay for with FTA capital funds?

The law permits areas under 200,000 in population to use all FTA formula funds for operating expenses. In urbanized areas over 200,000 in population, Federal law does not permit the use of capital funds to pay for operating expenses such as driver salaries, fuel, and non-maintenance administrative costs. Please note that maintenance costs are an eligible capital expense. In addition, up to 10 percent of your urbanized area apportionment can be used to pay for ADA paratransit operating costs.

12. Is the Federal government going to waive the 20 percent local share requirement in areas affected by the disaster?

Although waiving this statutory requirement would require Congressional action, FTA may, on a case-by-case basis, permit grantees impacted by the disaster to defer their local match, if needed. Grantees should contact their Regional Office to discuss possible deferrals.

13. Can I get reimbursed for transit passes that I provide to evacuees?

FEMA reimbursements are managed through State emergency management offices. At this time, FEMA has approved reimbursement for bus passes in Texas. You should talk to your State emergency office to determine whether this approach is going to be taken in your State. Please see Section 5 of this document for State emergency agency contact information.

How To Help Hurricane Evacuees

14. How can I find evacuees in my area and what can I do to help ensure that their transportation needs are met?

We encourage transit agencies to work with the evacuation shelters and human service agencies to identify individuals who need transportation services. You should let evacuation shelter and other social service agency staff know about the tool, “Building an Individualized Transportation Plan” (www.unitedweride.gov). This tool helps providers assess an individuals’ skills, experience, and ability to get to the bus, get on the bus, and safely navigate the transportation system to help identify the most appropriate transportation services.

15. I want to implement a transit pass program with evacuation shelters. How can I do that?

One way to implement a transit pass program in conjunction with an evacuation shelter is to simply give individuals with Shelter Identification free access to the fixed routes within the transit system. For transit agencies that want to give paper passes or tokens, you might consider setting up a dissemination point at the shelter. FEMA has already made transit passes eligible for reimbursement in the State of Texas. Transit agencies should contact their State emergency management office and FEMA regional office to seek reimbursement of transit passes as an eligible expense.

16. Are there other resources available to pay for transit passes?

You should be in touch with human service partners in your community to identify other opportunities for purchasing bus tokens and/or transit passes. The Federal Interagency Coordinating Council on Access and Mobility has identified 37 federal programs that will pay for gas, bus tokens, and transit passes. In most cases, decisions to do so are made at the local and/or state levels.

17. How do I manage the increase in service requests for door-to-door demand-response service for individuals who cannot use the fixed route system?

We encourage transit agencies to take a leadership role in convening a meeting of all human service and transportation providers in the community to identify the current level of resources available to address the transportation needs of evacuees who require specialized transportation services. This includes schools, senior centers, head start programs, health centers, churches and other organizations that have vehicles that are typically used for transporting specific populations. This information can be combined with the level of need identified by the shelters and other social service agencies to develop a coordinated plan for addressing existing and new needs.

18. How do I contact my human service partners at the local level?

If you do not already know your human service partners, we encourage you to contact your State United We Ride Coordinator (see Section 5 of this document). The United We Ride teams include multiple agencies from health, employment, transportation, and other related human service areas.

Section 3: Overview of Federal Emergency Management Agency Public Assistance Grant Program

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) is designated to provide financial assistance to public agencies and certain non-profit organizations for disaster response and recovery efforts.

Eligible applicants

- State
- County
- City/Town/Village
- State Political Subdivisions – e.g., regional transit operators
- Native American Tribes and Tribal Organizations
- Certain Private Non-Profit Organizations

Types of eligible work

- Emergency work – debris removal
- Emergency protective measures – activities undertaken by applicants to save lives, protect public health and safety and prevent damage to public and private property
 - search and rescue, security in the disaster area
 - provision of shelters or emergency care, provision of food, water, ice and other essential needs
 - removal of health and safety hazards
 - activation of local emergency operation centers to coordinate a direct response to the event (costs must be associated with the timeframe of the event)
- Permanent work – restore a damaged facility/vehicles to pre-disaster conditions

General cost eligibility

- Reasonable and necessary costs to accomplish eligible work
- Complies with Federal, state and local laws and regulations
- Insurance proceeds, salvage and purchase discounts must be deducted
- Federal participation 75%

Steps to getting FEMA assistance

- Contact your state emergency coordinator
- Complete necessary paperwork to request assistance
- Attend applicant briefing workshop
- Maintain complete record of all expenses (DOCUMENT!)
- Complete applications in a timely manner

Other

- BE PROACTIVE! – FEMA's Public Assistance Grant Program is a reimbursement program requiring the applicant to request and document expenses. Transit operators and State DOT's should contact State emergency management agencies and FEMA regarding reimbursement (see section 4).
